Is it possible to track me, while my GPS jammer is on?

2020/04/17

Hello, Paul! It's nice to hear people recommend our Jammer-Store company to their friends. Of course, we will try to help you solve your tracking problem. First of all you should know that tracking people is illegal and the guy, who have installed that device under your car is probably a criminal, of course if he or she had no warrant for that and they're not from police or FBI. We have a little experience in illegal tracking issues and there are a couple of ways how they can track your location with your GPS jammer on. First of all you should know that GPS is not the only option to calculate somebody's location. Those tracking device may use GLONASS as well, it is a Russian analogue of GPS. The only difference is that they use different frequencies and a simple GPS jamming device won;t be able to block it. Also, cell tower triangulation may be used. That technique is used to track your raw location between three closest GSM base stations. So, as you can see - tracking is possible, even while GPS jammer works. But there area couple of ways how to avoid it. First of all you will need a universal GSM, GPS, GLONASS signal jammer, which will block all the possible means for tracking and another option is to inspect your car from time to time, in order o make sure there are no trackers under it! Thanks for your question, I hope, I've managed to help!
